

From: Josh Hantman <hantman.joshua@gmail.com>

To: ehbarak1 <ehbarak1@gmail.com>

CC:

Date: Wed, 11/7/2012 7:56:40 PM

Subject: Fwd: ok, story very much still in the works so i have no idea what i'd actually use but here are the things i could possibly imagine using today or ציטוטים מהניו יורק טיימס...

There could be certain slight differences between us from time to time, but I believe that with our traditional deep friendship, the background of shared experience, it will also be possible to overcome any differences.

(re bilateral talks)

we cannot be against any such step as long as it is checked, or kind of scrutinized, within a given time frame in a way that will not paralyze us from being able to contemplate what to do if the iranians remain determined to turn military nuclear....

If it's a short time, no problem, if its going to stretch over the whole summer, it might once again bring us to a point of difference with the united states

The new administration probably will try to instill new life into the diplomatic efforts to move forward with the palestinians. That in my judgment is positive. I think that under the quite dramatic turbulence of the middle east in the last two years, any move forward in the relationship with the pals is also positive for Israel.

(re bibi relationship)

I think basically that the basic friendship and alliance between Israel and the united states has much deeper foundations.

We have a deep unbreakable bond beyond policy on either side in the background people understand that the relationship with the united states of America is a major pillar of the strategic interests of israel

We can and should find ways to work together even if there were certain kind of bumps on the road in recent years we should be able to move beyond it

There is nothing better to mend any scar or grudge from the past than making better achievements in the present and the future.